Although, this does not mean that man possesses a spark of divinity or that between God and fallen human beings there is some continuous element. Dichotomists often argue against the tripartite view of man by discrediting it through its apparent connection with Platonism. University Of Chicago Press.

Aristotle identified three hierarchical levels of natural beings: The Bible makes it clear that the soul and spirit are the primary immaterial aspects of humanity, while the body is the physical container that holds them on this earth. Man and his Nature, part 1 []. Higher than the soul is the spirit, which is considered to be the real self; the source of everything we call "good"—happiness, wisdom, love, compassion, harmony, peace.

What at first is only obscurely intimated gradually unfolds in subsequent stages. This process is only when the soul is attracted towards the spiritual and merges with the Self that it becomes eternal and divine. The psyche is the center of the personal being, the 'I' of each individual.
